

Dr. Michael Mol

Currently senior lecturer in Strategic Management at the University of Reading and a visiting researcher of the Management Lab at London Business School, both in the U.K. Dr. Mol's research focuses on the strategic management of large firms, with particular interests in sourcing strategy and management innovation.

His publications have appeared or are due to appear in, among others, Academy of Management, Review International Business Review, Research Policy, Sloan Management Review, Strategic Organization. Michael Mol, with London Business School's professor Julian Birkinshaw, is the author of the recently published and well reviewed "Giant Steps in Management", published by FT Prentice Hall.

Michael serves on the editorial board of two journals and has been the recipient of grants from a variety of international institutions. His research has been quoted in Harvard Business Review and cited many times by the Financial Times and other newspapers.

He has been a consultant to various organisations and companies (IBM, EDS and the United Nations) and has also been involved in various executive teaching programs.